London Air-Mail Letter

An Historic Landmark Saved: Scottish Universities and Distinguished Woman: The Lindbergh's in London: Gordon Richards and a Turf Record: The Lord Mayor's Show: Admiral Max Horton and a War Story

(Special Air-Mail Service)

PRINCE AND CHAILEY WINDMILL.

London, Oct. 10.
Princess Alice Countess of Athlone yesterday restarted the sails of the windmill at Challey (Sussex) which was blown down a few years ago and has now been restored. At Challey Heritage Craft Schools, where the reopening ceremony took place a letter from the Prince of Wales was read.

In his letter the Prince stated: "Admiral Halsey has shown me your letter saying that my aunt, Princess Alice, is restarting the sails of the restored windmill at Challey. I am writing to say how pleased I am that this old Sussex landmark, which I well remember talking about, has, through your efforts, been preserved."

"I am sure that all who, like myself, are interested in Challey must appreciate the generosity of those who made the restoration of the windmill possible."

HONORARY DEGREES FOR WOMEN.

The Dowager Lady Airlie, who yesterday received an honorary Doctorate of Law from St. Andrews University, thereby joins a distinguished group of women, including the Duchess of York and Dame Ethel Smyth.

The Scottish Universities are more feminist than the English in the bestowal of this honour. Oxford has only three women D.C.L.s, the Duchess of Atholl and the principals of the two chief women's colleges, Somerville and Lady Margaret Hall. A Doctorate of Music was conferred on Dame Ethel Smyth in 1923.

Cambridge is even more conservative, and the heads of neither Girton nor Newnham hold honorary degrees.

WAR OFFICE GIFT OF A CHURCH.

Dr. Parsons, the Bishop of Southwark, consecrated the new church of St. Barnabas, at Eltham, I.E., yesterday.
The church is a gift by the War Office to the former Bishop of Southwark's Twenty-five Churches Fund and was formerly the Royal Dockyard Church at Woolwich but became disused on the removal of the Royal Marines to Chatham.

It was removed brick by brick to Eltham and re-erected at a cost of nearly £10,000.

AIRWOMAN AS BRIDESMAID.

A noted airwoman, one of the very few who holds a commercial pilot's licence (B licence), which enables her to take up passengers and charge a fee for doing it, is to appear in the role of bridesmaid to-morrow week.

She is Miss Joan Page (a daughter of Sir Arthur and Lady Page), who will attend her sister Miss Rosemary Page at her marriage to Mr. J. H. Foster, The Buffs.

COLONEL AND MRS. LINDBERGH IN LONDON.

After spending three days in almost complete seclusion at St. Bridge's super-Ely, in South Wales, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh have left for London, where it is understood that Colonel Lindbergh is to confer with experts on the development of transatlantic air services.

RACECOURSE DRAMA.

In clubs and at luncheon tables during the past three days the achievements of Gordon Richards on the turf have ousted other topics for conversation. People who have little or no interest in the racecourse are captivated by the little man's marvellous skill in getting his mounts home first. The remainder of the racing season is big with the fate of Fred Archer's record. Betting has begun on whether "Gordon" will beat it, and I am not surprised that the bookmakers are rather coy. The culmination of his daily challenge to a record that has stood since the '80's promises to provide one of the most dramatic incidents ever staged on the racecourse.

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW TO BE "CUT".

This year's Lord Mayor's Show will be substantially shortened, both in the size of the procession and the length of the route.

It is likely that the procession will be reduced to one-third of its usual size, though no decision has been reached as to the nature of the "cuts."

The Lord Mayor's Show Committee, whose secretary is the City Remembrancer, Mr. Dixon Taylor, is now considering various suggestions. In previous years the type of pageantry has been varied according to the calling or interests of the new Lord Mayor.

Last year, for example, the printing industry was given prominence in honour of Sir Percy Greenaway, and in 1931 for Sir Maurice Jenkins, a chartered accountant, the show emphasised modern industrial development.

In 1928 there was a "social reform" pageant, the Lord Mayor, Sir Kynaston Studd, having devoted so much of his life to young people, while in the previous year, as Sir Charles Batho had shipping connections overseas, transport and communications were in the forefront.

SIR ROBERT MOND'S GIFT.

Sir Robert Mond has presented to the Royal United Service Museum, a collection of 100 miniature soldiers of the Napoleonic Army, which have recently been on view at the Museum.

There are 911 figures, and they took thirty-five years to collect. Every regiment in Napoleon's Army is represented, including his Irish and Swiss troops, and each regiment has its own band with typical instruments, among which is the antique "serpent." There are also representations of Napoleon himself.

The collection was made by a British officer who insisted on accuracy in details of uniform and equipment.

A LAY THEOLOGIAN.

Mr. Will Spens, master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, who has just handed over the reins of the Vice-Chancellorship of the University to his successor, is off to America.

He is going to speak at the congress to be held this autumn in Philadelphia in celebration of the centenary of the Oxford Movement.

Though biology is the subject on which he is an authority in the University, Mr. Spens has a much wider reputation as a theologian. In recent years it has spread far beyond this country, largely owing to his book, "Belief and Practice."

A NEW IRISH HOME.

Sir William Arbuthnot Lane has been visiting Galway, where, at Ballynahinch Castle, the estate and effects of Banjo are being sold.

Sir Arbuthnot has purchased Inagh Lodge and fisheries, including the Derrylare Lake, and it is his intention to reside in Inagh. It is a beautiful property.

The estate consists of about five miles of lake, and the fishing rights over 8,000 acres, so that the famous surgeon will be able to indulge his passion for fishing to the full.

FLYING THE "JOLLY ROGER."

Some of the war's most daring undersea exploits are recalled by the appointment of Rear-Admiral Max E. Horton, D.S.O., as Rear-Admiral, Second Battle Squadron, Home Fleet, to take effect in December.

As captain of submarine E 9 in September, 1914, he "bagged" the German cruiser Hela, and followed this up later by torpedoing the big cruiser Prinz Adalbert.

Three destroyers, two transporters, and many merchantmen, laden with contraband, were also despatched by his unerring torpedoes.

I believe it to be true that whenever he had sent an enemy ship to the bottom he returned to base flying the "Jolly Roger."

A SIGNAL HONOUR.
France is to pay a signal honour to the memory of M. Georges Leygues, who recently died in harness as Minister of Marine.

In view of his immense services to the French Navy, which, in its

OXFORD YOUTH DEFENDED

"Eccentricities" Much Exaggerated

Special Air-Mail Service

London, Oct. 10.
The Provost of Worcester College, the Rev. F. J. Lys, was re-elected Vice-Chancellor in Convocation at Oxford to-day. Letters nominating him for a second term of office written before his death by the late Viscount Grey of Fallodon, the Chancellor, were communicated.

The Vice-Chancellor apologised for speaking in English in his reply, since there was so much he was going to say that could have been better expressed in Latin. "Since however," he added, "some of you are used to one pronunciation and others to another, it seems best that I should keep to our mother tongue."

In his review of his year of office the Vice-Chancellor championed the modern, undergraduate, and said: "With as many as 4,000 men and 330 women undergraduates, and considering the vagaries of human nature and the characteristics of youth, it would indeed be incredible if it were asserted that nothing is ever said or done of which erudite age or even the sober judgment of middle life does not approve. It has been astonishing to me that instances of serious misconduct are so few."

He deplored the tendency in some sections of the Press to "be so much interested in any extravagances and eccentricities of youth which it can discover here and advertise them so widely and exaggerate their importance so much."

Bodleian Library

Referring to the Bodleian Library extension scheme, the Vice-Chancellor said that in view of the world-wide importance of the library he thought it was necessary to reserve the whole sum necessary for the scheme.

"In view of the popular recognition of the commercial importance of the scientific studies," he added, "it would be gratifying if it were possible for the University more often to record benefactions for the expansion of scientific work. That it cannot is more to be regretted because of the relatively very high cost of supplying the needs of research and training in such subjects."

The Vice-Chancellor nominated at Pro-Vice-Chancellors the following: The Master of Pembroke College (Dr. F. Holmes Dudden), the Master of University College (Sir Michael Sadler), the Warden of Wadham (Mr. J. F. Stenning) and the Master of Balliol (Mr. A. D. Lindsay).

modern form, is largely his creation, the Government have decided that the new cruiser of 7,500 tons, which is now building as the Chataubault, shall be renamed the Georges Leygues.

Not for many years, I believe, has the memory of a French statesman been perpetuated in this striking fashion.
A BIRMINGHAM RETROSPECT.
When Sir Hilton Young supports the resolution, declaring "war on the slums" at the Conservative conference at Birmingham he will do so on appropriate ground.

It is sixty years since Joseph Chamberlain, then Mayor of Birmingham, declared that "in twelve months, by God's help, the town shall not know itself," and before he went out of office, he had cleared an immense area of tumble-down tenements, which, he said, were "unfit for a dog to die in."

What Chamberlain did then England has need to do to-day.

HOW TO READ THE GOSPELS

do Our Father's will, with the abiding consciousness of God-encompassed love.

Now notice how Jesus handles his metaphors at this point as between personal and impersonal illustrations. The Lilies of the field live unpersonally unconsciously in the right relationship.
If this was all Jesus had to say about the Christian life, we might believe that any set times of prayer were quite unnecessary. But Jesus seems to realise the inadequacy of impersonal things to describe personal relations. There are stories about men which carry further the picture of the lilies. In St. Luke He tells the story of the man who had not enough to give his friend, so he got what he wanted
from his neighbour by making himself a nuisance. He told the story of a widow who got what she wanted from a judge by making herself a nuisance. Does this imply a similar attitude of men to God? Does it justify the first quotations I gave you? Jesus makes it clear that is not His meaning.
"Your heavenly Father", He says,
"knoweth that ye have need all these things. But it does mean that man cannot keep in the right
personal relationship with Jesus without effort. Just because we are persons and not inanimate things,
our relations with others are a conscious activity. Your son is at school in England. You write to him by every mail and you expect him to write to you. You may say that there is no need,
because you love him and he loves
you. You do not say that. You know well that the maintenance of personal relationship requires these definite sets of approach to each other. I wonder how many of you have helped a small boy to write a letter. It brings back very vividly to me my own efforts under the persistent encouragements of my aunts, to spell out dingy pencillings to my parents.
The story of the Importunate Neighbour seem to me parallel to that experience. Because God is unseen, because we are so encompassed by the visible as a little boy's interest is absorbed by the visible, we make conscious effort to keep ourselves in touch with the unseen. May I now remind you of the instances of the right use of the imagination. Perhaps that is the "has" of prayer. We do not "will" God to do what we want, but we do discipline our wills to use our imaginings to realise the nature and the presence of God. By this disciplined use of the imagination
we can keep our hearts open to Him, and so abide in His love. The effort of prayer should then be much more of an attempt to keep certain times and to spend certain times for keeping in touch with God, than a determination to assert our will either over against His, or over against life as we meet it.

Thirdly.—I now become intensely practical. I have a rule to write to my parents every Sunday.
I know the value of keeping that rule. It does not formalise son-ship, but it does enable the son-ship which is mine with my parents to express itself. So with our relationship with God. Regular worship, regular praying, regular bible reading, are not formal external things: they are the natural discipling of ourselves to do the thing we most want to do—to make time for our fellowship with God Our Father.

"FATHER, INTO THY HANDS
I COMMIT MY SPIRIT"

The regular prayer of the Jewish boy as he went to bed was "Into Thy hands I commend my spirit."
Jesus was taught this prayer by His mother. They are His last words on the Cross. A new word is added, the word "Father." The Aramaic word that Jesus used has come down to us The word "Abba."
It is quoted even in a Greek letter written by St. Paul to the Greeks. The intimacy of Jesus with God could only be expressed by using the very word He had used—full of the meaning that He had given to it. And so for us the word "Father" has become the basis of all praying. Not just a defined general fatherhood, paternal beneficent, universal: but a Father with the heart of Jesus Christ. The Father we come to know in Jesus Christ "I am the way," said Jesus, the way to the Father's heart. Gospel reading has only one object, one beginning and one end, that we may be made one with God, and dwell in Him as branches in a vine as Sons in a Father's love.

I once asked a friend to come and talk to my people about prayer. He spoke instead about God and His love. And all of us prayed better because of what he said to us. "Before Jesus lived men could say, 'Into Thy hands I commend
my spirit,' but now we can say,
'Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit.'"

We have seen in the divine love of Jesus Christ the light of God's own being. It will light the darkest path. Let us keep our hearts open to that light of love. To do so is the discipline of prayer and worship. God will do the rest. He will illuminate our path and show us His way that we may walk in it.

OFF THE BEATEN PATH IN JAPAN

A Holiday Amid Lakes, Forests & Shrines
Of Nikko & Shioyama

BY ALBERT G. DAVIES.

There is no doubt that a very large number of persons, who find it impossible to spend their vacation
in their own Homeland find it convenient and comparatively inexpensive to go to Japan, which is easily reached by many excellent lines of passenger steamers offering special facilities in the shape of rates etc., and there get away from the heat and turmoil of their residential place; but it is a discomfortable fact that a great majority of such visitors to the Island Empire in the Far East invariably gravitate to such well-known spas and health resorts as Unzen, and Beppu, with the natural consequence that such places become so congested that would-be residents who arrive late in the season either find themselves shut out entirely by reason of lack of accommodation, or are obliged to adopt some uncomfortable "make-shift."

Then, when once located, the vacationist seems to be content to "settle down" in the one spot only until their leave expires, and it is time for them to return to the business occupations and everyday pursuits.

Recognising this, I decided that this year I would so arrange an itinerary of travel that I would be enabled to see as much of Japan
as possible, commencing with Nikko
as a starting point, taking in Hokkaido, and ending up with Nagasaki, the predominant idea being that the trip should not cost any more than it would were I to stay at one of the regular famous resorts all the time, and yet, by stepping "off the beaten path," I should be enabled to visit some of the less frequented spots of interest in Japan. With this plan in mind,
I duly arrived at the port of Yokohama by one of the popular N.Y.K. boats, after a very pleasant but uneventful trip, and proceeded immediately to Nikko, reaching that destination in a little over two hours by express train.

NIKKO

Japan has been aptly called the "Tourist's Mecca," and there are undoubtedly very many places of interest which can be visited, with little or no expense, if "hiking" is indulged in, after one has left the train: not the least are to be found in and around Nikko, and some of the walks are the most delightful
and most diverting in Japan.

Nikko is some 2000 feet above sea level, and most foreigners would stay at the Kanaya hotel, one of the best and most picturesque caravan-series in Japan, with all the latest and most modern appointments of European or American hotels, and it is at this popular resort that we put up one night.
In Nikko can be found all that the tourist can wish for, and here can be had, in season of course, fishing,
boating, swimming, and golfing:
fishing, indeed, adds a feature to this world-famous resort, and those who find a pleasure in the sport
have found here a good opportunity,
June and July are the best months
for fishing, but the "season" really opens in April for foreign visitors,
that being the cherry blossom season, the Summer ending in October—the maple-changing season. In Winter—the hotel is open all the year—skating, ski-ing, shooting and deer hunting are all to be had, in the Nantai and Nyoko mountains, 8000' above sea level.

Nikko is really beautiful, and the solemn and impressive grandeur of the lofty forest covered mountains which tower above it: the barbaric splendour of the temples and mausolea enshrined in the forest groves:
the charm of the plunging, brailling, ever-changing river: the cool climate: the proximity of many lovely waterfalls: the near-by Chuzenji and Yumoto lakes etc.
make it indeed a Mecca, alike for resident foreigners in Japan, and other travellers from all parts of the world.

Time did not permit of an extensive study of the many beauties to be found in Nikko, but a rapid visit to Lake Chuzenji was made.
Just before the lake is reached,
which is some 2,000 above Nikko a very pretty waterfall can be seen—the Kegon—while the lake itself is very popular with fishermen, being well stocked with salmon trout.
American rainbow trout, and other fish. The salmon trout is obtained from the Hokkaido Government
fish hatchery, while a fish hatchery situated at the end of the lake supplies the other species.

Proceeding by cable car, one reached Yumoto village, a further 1000 feet up, making an altitude of 3000 feet above sea level. Here can be seen—and smelt—the hot sulphur springs and—baths of the water,
which can be enjoyed at the village
at the inn. The road to Yumoto is a good motor one, and most delightful scenery is passed, as is also two of the finest waterfalls in Japan—the Ryuu and the Yodaki falls.

SIXTY SHRINES

Much more time might be advantageously spent over Nikko than we could afford, and so we had to reluctantly return in order to visit the famous temple and the shrines.

There are three large shrines, and some fifty-eight smaller ones, and one American lady boasted that she had visited them all! Well, we had no desire to emulate her feat, especially having regard to the fact that they are all uphill, and I can only say that our party did not,
and so it must be left for some other pen than mine to depict the marvellous architecture of some of the great gates to the large shrines,
with their elaborate wood carving ornamented with brass metal work,
and gold lacquer work with mother of pearl insets. We had only one day to spare to Nikko, and its beauty, and as that time had almost elapsed, and we had not yet really left the "beaten path," preparations were immediately made to proceed Shioyama, to reach which we go to Sendai
via Utsunomiya by express train.
At Shioyama will be found a most note-worthy Shinto shrine—the Shioyama-jinja—situated amid towering Cryptomerias and other trees, and standing on a lofty terrace reached by some 200 steps, with some good bronzes in the foreground. Shioyama, however, is most known as a good place from which to cross Matsushima bay, considered to be one of the loveliest stretch of sea in Japan, and ranking as one of the Three Great Sights. This spot has been famed for centuries, and visitors to Japan will miss much if they fail to visit
it. The morning, twilight, and moonlight views of the graceful islets that rise like bewitching green canees from a faultless opaline sea,
have to be seen to be appreciated.
Its tranquil beauty is of a restful-ness indescribable. The Park hotel, overlooking the bay, is a splendid
place in which to have luncheon.
A side trip to the Kinkazan ("flower mountain") a semi-sacred island is recommended, and will well repay
the extra time spent.

BRITAIN & THE JEWS

Race Ascendancy
Theory Rejected

MINISTERS STATEMENT
AT GENEVA

GENEVA.
A clear indication of the British attitude towards Jewish persecution
in Germany was given here at a public session of the League of Nations by Mr. Ormsby-Gore, Britain's First Commissioner of Works.

At the previous meeting of the commission Herr von Koller (Germany)
had declared that the Jewish problem could not be regarded as a minorities question.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore, rejected the idea of a State based on racial homogeneity.
The British Empire was held together by equality of status. No one was debarred from high office by reason of race, colour, or creed. He added:

"Ever since neolithic times there has been infiltration into Britain of various races and strains from all over the world, and inside our own unit of Great Britain we have three quite conscious nationalities—English, Scotch, and Welsh—each was again divided into many races—the dark-haired Welshman, the red-haired Welshman, the Pict and the Scot. This Aryan doctrine and the doctrine of homogeneity quite frankly cannot apply to the British Empire.

The Empire Cement.

"If we were to substitute for our present conception of the British Empire this conception of the race ascendancy of one element in it—I presume it would be Scotch—quite rankly it would be the end.

"We believe firmly in the Parliamentary system whereby minorities can be heard and can bring their case to a Government and in a free Press. Parliamentary institutions are the cement
of the British Empire.

"If the racism of the Aryan German is emphasised, it must be admitted that the Jew has a racial identity, and is bound by those same ties of blood, and kinship,
and history to all Jews of the world.

"I say definitely that there is among the Jews a sense of their historical continuity throughout their dispersal
and that they do form a racial minority which deserves the same treatment everywhere as all other minorities in all countries.

"What is that treatment? Above all equal rights of citizenship as loyal citizens of the nation to which they have been attached. Wherever the Jews have been well and liberally treated they have been the most loyal and helpful members of the nation.

"In view of the attention which this question is attracting throughout the world, people in England are reading what Chancellor Hitler has written on the subject in his famous book and are trying to understand the German point of view. What we read quite frankly makes us nervous."

Widow

Convicted on a charge of steal-

tenced to six weeks hard labour,
and an additional one month for having broken her bond, by Mr.

yesterday.

"The defendant specializes in this kind of theft, and was convicted for a similar offence under exactly the same circumstances in January last," remarked Sub-Inpector Noloth, who prosecuted.

THE R.A.M.C. ASSOCIATION

Local Branch Formed

Monday, the 13th November, will see the inauguration of a new Association in the Colony. In starting a Hong Kong branch of the Royal Army Medical Corps Association, those responsible are satisfying a long felt want. At present there are many ex-members of the Royal Army Medical Corps residing in the Colony who still take a keen interest in the Corps activities and will only too willing to help in any way whatsoever.

Since the Association was formed in 1923 great work has been done in the finding of positions for R. A. M. C.
men in civilian life. Hundreds of Ex-Corps men have been found employment and many new friends have been made. Quite a number of distressed cases have been given a new turn of life and their welfare has been seen to by almost paternal eyes. All ex-R.
A. M. C. personnel at present residing in the Colony are cordially invited to the opening dance.

BRITISH LABOUR PARTY PLANS

A £50,000 Campaign

Hastings.—An ambitious plan of campaign designed to bring victory
for the party at the next General Election was unanimously approved
at a secret session of the Socialist party conference.

This plan was embodied in a printed manifesto issued by the Executive Council, in which it was stated: "The time has arrived
when, in the opinion of the National Executive Council, a supreme effort should be made to achieve power."

"The party's aim must now be
to secure power that will not only
lead to the establishment of a Labour Government, but will also
guarantee the successful realisation of the party's reconstruction
plans."

"To achieve this aim party work must be conducted on a larger scale than ever before. An overwhelming majority of the electors must be organized in convinced support of the party."

"The fifty-one Parliamentary seats now held must be increased to at least 400, and the 6,500,000
electors must be more than doubled
on the next occasion."

The main points of the mass campaign which is to be put into operation were then given in the manifesto, and they included a statement that at least £50,000 would be required to carry through effectively the executive's proposals.
Of the £50,000 it was proposed that £30,000 should be raised by the national and general movement and the remainder by the constituency parties.

"The party's aim must now be
to secure power that will not only
lead to the establishment of a Labour Government, but will also
guarantee the successful realisa-
tion of the party's reconstruction
plans."

CARPENTER CLAIMS $500

Case Opened by Late
Mr. Rendall

Before Mr. Justice Wood yesterday Ip Ling Hui claimed from the Sing Loong firm, $500, representing money deposited with the defendant in December 24, 1930.

Mr. A. el Arculli appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. F. X. D'Almada e Castro for the defendant.

Mr. Arculli deputed for Messrs. Russ and Co., and the case, it is interesting to mention, was one which was opened by the late Mr. F. C. E. Rendall.

Mr. Arculli said that the plaintiff was a carpenter in Siam. The money was sent to the defendant firm through a Chinese bank for deposit.

The defendant claimed that they had invested the money on the instructions of the plaintiff. Giving judgment for the plaintiff the Chief Justice remarked that the defence had failed to furnish proof that plaintiff had given the instructions alleged.

"MYSTERIOUS" RETURN TO PORT

And A Simple Explanation

Some curiosity was aroused on the Harbour on Thursday morning when the s.s. "Somerville," belonging to the Klavens Line, was seen to return to port some 22 hours after leaving. The "Somerville," commanded by Captain A. Kellenborn, had left Hongkong at 10 p.m. on 25th for a coast port and returned at about 8.30 on Thursday. Then she again left port an hour after re-entrance.

On enquiry it appeared that not long after clearing port a European "greaser" was taken ill. He seemed to be suffering from great pain suspectedly from appendicitis and it was decided to turn the vessel back and get him to hospital.

I LOVED YOU
WEDNESDAY
Bitter & Sophisticated
Comedy

"How can a film, with such a name be good," said a highly cultured and sophisticated gentleman, well-known in the Colony. "Elissa Landi is one of the few women in Hollywood who can act," said a friend, who had got tickets. "Yes, I agree, and she happens to be beautiful. But—" and he repeated his criticism. Both thought the film was a simple, but well produced leg-show.

Actually it is one of the most sophisticated films ever produced—comedy with a sting. A tale of two beautiful and charming women, going to the devil grace-fully on account of a selfish but extremely pleasant libertine, the intermittent husband of one of them.

There are, of course, some ballet shows, but they are severe the Russian ballet, especially the futurist ballet which makes no concession to Broadway whatever. It is not, even barbaric in the Russian manner, but an expression of the kind of intellectual ferocity one expects in the granite hills of Marx.

Frankly many of the audience, in hilarious mood after the Follies, were puzzled. The film was not what they expected, but it is telling, in witty dialogue, and you will find it refreshing, as caviare, after a sweet cocktail.

THE MIDNIGHT FOLLIES.

The Midnight Follies who opened a short season at the King's yesterday, put on a very lively little show. The seven dancers are an attractive and agile team, and at least two of their costumes were most unusually decorative. Two of the chorus gave solo dances of an acrobatic order and both ladies gained a demand for an encore.

Betty and Arden give an unusually good display of "Acrobatic Adagio," which in simple English means that an amazingly difficult-looking sort of performance, in which a muscular young man tosses a girl about as if she were a doll. What was particularly attractive about the performance of Betty and Arden was the apparent smiling ease with which they did it all, and the real grace of their movements.

Frank Bradwood, master of ceremonies, told some amusing yarns, played on the ukelele and sang. There was no doubt that the audience enjoyed the whole performance and will give a warm welcome to the Midnight Follies if they visit Hong Kong again.

"BONDAGE"

A Fine Tale Of Youth

"Bondage," the new Fox drama revealing the problem of inexperienced youth in search of completed happiness, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday.

Dorothy Jordan, one of the most beautiful of the younger film stars, and Alexander Kirkland, with a long list of screen successes to his credit, have the leading roles.

The story of "Bondage" is said to deal with a group of youngsters

ble for a performance of unusual brilliance. Elissa Landi rises to new and unexpected heights of emotional acting as the Christian, Mercia, and Frederic March surpasses anything he has ever done for the screen as the favourite of Nero's court, Marcus Superbus, whose love for the Christian girl proves stronger than tradition, wealth, position or even life.

In the secondary roles are Ian Keith as a sinister villain, captain of Nero's guard; Vivian Tobin, charming in her first screen role as a gossipy Roman matron; Ferdinand Gottschalk bringing his fine talent to the role of a philosopher; Tommy Conlon as a Christian boy, and a dancer named Joyelle as the courtesan, Anearia.

Don't miss "The Sign of the Cross!" It's the first real spectacle of talking films and it tops every silent film of its type.

"FRA DIAVOLO"
The New Laurel and
Hardy FilmAn unusual predicament compels Laurel and Hardy to become members of a bandit gang in their latest feature-length comedy, Fra Diavolo, which opens next Friday at the Queen's Theatre. "Fra Diavolo" is a picture of Auber's famous comic opera, with Dennis King, the noted singer and stage star, portraying the Marquis de San Merco, who ingratiates himself into the good graces of all the lovely ladies while stealing their jewelry.

Held up by bandits, Laurel and Hardy are seen as a couple of carefree vagabonds. They have saved their money, and decide to take life easy. At which moment a couple of bandits hold them up and take away their savings. It then occurs to Laurel that it is easier to steal than to make money honestly.

Undertaking the career of highway robbers, they eventually confront Diavolo, known throughout the countryside as the notorious bandit chief. Pretending to be the great chief himself, Hardy soon discovers his mistake, but it is too late to make a getaway. The chief's band surround the comedians and make them prisoners.

Hardy is sentenced to be hanged and Laurel is given the job of hangman. The comedians are saved temporarily when they consent to be the personal aides of the bandit chief who is in quest of a beautiful lady's jewels. In addition to the comedy team and Dennis King, the supporting cast includes Thelma Todd, James Finlayson, Lucille Brown, Arthur Pierson and Henry Armetta.

SERVICE TO HONG KONG?

Shanghai, October 27. The aeroplane "Canton" arrived here noon from Foochow.—Reuter.

Canton, October 27. The airplane "Canton" of the China National Aviation Corporation which left Canton last Wednesday arrived at Shanghai this afternoon. Instead of flying direct to Swatow, the amphibian plane flew first to Hong Kong and landed at Kai Tuck Airfield.

The purpose of this trip, it is understood, was to enable officials of the corporation to interview the Hong Kong government with a view to extending its service to Hong Kong. The plane then left Hong Kong yesterday morning and flew to Shanghai via ports arriving there this afternoon.

Another plane, the "Foonchow," took off from Lungkwa Airfield Shanghai this morning for Canton via ports and will arrive here late this afternoon.—Central Press.

ECHOES OF 1859

35-A Piracy Near Macao May 6, 1859

We have been favoured with the following communication from Macao:—

"The Kam Faa left this morning at 8 o'clock on her regular trip to Cheong Sha, about 8 miles to the Westward of Macao, with 40 Chinese passengers, of whom eight were just from California, with between $4,000 to $5,000. When about half way, the Captain (Graves) and a Seedy, the only foreigners on board were suddenly attacked by the passengers about 30 of whom instantly took possession of the boat, threatening the lives of the Chinese stokers and engineers, and placing one at the helm, others in the engine room, etc. The pirates, as I suppose I must call them, drove the Captain to his cabin, inflicting upon the side of his head, a terrible blow with the sword; and almost cutting off his thumb, and kept him within his cabin while they broke open his box, chest of drawers and trunks, taking all they could find. The attack was hardly commenced when three boats came alongside and their crews crowded on board. The cabin, the doors and furniture were covered with blood from the wounds of the Captain, the Seedy and the crew.

Having completely gutted the boat of everything of any value, they left in the boats that had come alongside. When gone, it was found that they had spiked a small gun which the steamer carried on a pivot forward and had taken away with them the starting bar of the engine, to prevent chase being made. At length the Californian Chinese on board, cursed their ill-luck in good stout English style, and made reference to the plunderers in a language, which we could only expect to hear in a ship's "forecastle" or at the "diggings." They are much to be pitied being as they told me now without a cash in the world. They had on an average about $500 each.

Since the above was in type we have received a letter from Macao dated yesterday morning. Seven of the ruffians who committed the piracy have been apprehended—they were caught in a house by the police the previous night, about eleven o'clock. In their depositions before the Procurador, the Californian Chinese stated their loss to be $22,000, but it is thought they are exaggerating.

JAPANESE ARMY MANOEUVRES

Emperor Leaves Tokyo For The "Front"

Tokyo, Oct. 22.
Emperor Hirohito left the Imperial Central at 8 o'clock this morning by special train for the city of Fukuoka to superintend, as supreme commander, the army manoeuvres commencing day after to-morrow in the Hokuriku district, some 250 miles west of Tokyo. The Emperor will rest to-night in the palace at Kyoto, and reach Fukuoka to-morrow. He will make his headquarters in the Fukuoka prefectural government building.

For strategic purpose the army authorities are keeping secret the exact number of men engaged in the manoeuvres until they are concluded. Usually well-informed observers, however estimate the number at around 60,000. This is based on the belief that between one and two divisions will be engaged on each side of the sham battle, which lasts three days. The manoeuvres are being held on a full-war footing, and the wartime strength of a division is roughly 20,000 men, while the peace strength of an infantry division is about 10,000.

PROTECTING THE SOLDIER.

That the high command of the army does its utmost to protect the health and comfort of the "hefai san" ("Mr. Soldier"), as the soldier boys are popularly called—as the necessities of military training permit—is shown by the fact that the manoeuvres have been speeded up this year to avoid the rainy season in Hokuriku.

Usually the autumn grand manoeuvres are held in November, but as that is when the rain falls most heavily in Fukuoka and Ishikawa prefectures, they are being held toward the end of this month, when the weather is at its best, to avoid the troops being soaked with consequent danger of getting colds, influenza, etc. Another consideration is that the rice fields are in the best condition for troop movements just now.

The army had a painful experience in divisional midsummer manoeuvres this year at the base of Mt. Fuji, when scores of soldiers suffered sunstroke, half a dozen dying as a result. This year's summer was unusual for its long sustained heat, and the day the sunstroke deaths occurred began with a hot "dick" rain. This humidity made the usual heat that midday unbearable for the marching troops. They were moving under "war time" orders and could not be immediately stopped, but when the commander of the manoeuvres, a "certain distinguished personage" heard of the troops suffering, he at once halted operations and ordered everything possible, done for their comfort. Funeral services for the sunstroke fatalities were held with full military honours.

TROUBLES OF SOLDIERS.

When training the army recruits one of the things given particular attention is to accustom them to wearing shoes. About a month after entering the barracks the new soldiers are marched for about five miles a day. After about a month of this, they are marched some 10 miles a day, and so on. Most of the privates in the Japanese army are country boys, due to their physique being superior to that of city youths, and until they enter the army the only footwear most of them are accustomed to is "geta" (wooden clogs) which allow the foot to expand naturally. It is recalled that in the early part of the Shanghai fighting last year the Japanese forces were all landing parties from warships, and these men suffered considerably from foot blisters caused by tramping about in shoes.

Lieutenant-General Takekoshi Hirose, President of the Military Academy, Lieutenant-General Mikio Furusho, of the General Staff Office, and Lieutenant-General Saburo Satoh were to-day appointed chief judges for the Grand Autumn Manoeuvres in Fukuoka Prefecture which will commence Tuesday.

Lieutenant-General Yoshikatsu Aramaki, commander of the Ninth Army Division, and Colonel T. Miyake, chief staff officer of the 9th Division, were selected to command the military review to be held on October 27, following the manoeuvres.—United Press.

"KING KONG'S" TOOTH!

Found in the Kam District.

The following strange story, for which we take no responsibility, appears in a Chinese newspaper:—While digging a grave, a workman named To Ah Chung of the Nam Tong village in the Tse Kam District, Waichow, found a large tooth believed to be a relic of some pre-historic animal.

The tooth was found at a depth of about six feet, and its colour is white and yellow. It has sharp points at the corners, and its weight is about fifteen catties.

It is reported that the tooth has been removed to To Ah Chung's house, where it is the cynosure of many pairs of curious eyes!

The toast of "Our Alma Mater" was proposed by Professor R.K.M. Simpson, M.C. A telegram of congratulations was sent to Sir Thomas Holland, Principal of the University.

WORLD-WIDE CELEBRATIONS

In Edinburgh the anniversary ceremonies were held on Friday and Saturday, and overseas graduates arranged local gatherings throughout the wide world.

There are about 3,500 Edinburgh graduates abroad, in addition to 15,000 in Great Britain. Principal Sir Thomas Holland has said, "They are so widely scattered that one could say with safety that the sun never sets on the General Council." All graduates of the University are entitled to membership of the General Council.

The first batch of Edinburgh students assembled under Robert Rollock on October 14, 1583. They numbered about eighty. More than half of these succeeded in completing their course of study, which was four years, and an early historian tells us, "In August 1587, Master Robert Rollock did laureate the first class which was passed under his charge in the College of Edinburgh, after every one of them had subscribed the covenant." They were to the number of forty-eight; among whom were many able wits. In 1604 it was enacted that students of the University, in addition to subscribing the covenant, should sign an oath of fidelity to their "alma mater." To this day it is necessary, before being admitted to a University course, to sign this "Sponsio academica" which is in the nature of an oath of allegiance, perseverance and obedience.

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE. Much of the fame of Edinburgh University rests on its School of Medicine, long recognised as the leading organisation of its kind in the world. It had its beginning about 1670, when Andrew Balfour established what was strangely called a "medicine garden" near Holyrood Abbey.

It is sometimes argued whether the present era, or the latter part of the eighteenth century, constitute the greatest period in the University's fame. Those who praise the past, contend that the end of the eighteenth century was the golden age of the city of Edinburgh, as Town and Gown were then more closely related than at any other time. It was a great literary age. Edinburgh had an outstanding group of scholars, wits and authors. The University was under the guidance of Principal William Robertson, the historian; Hugh Blair held the Chair of Rhetoric and English Literature (claimed to be the first chair of English in any British University); while Adam Ferguson, followed by Dugald Stewart, taught Philosophy.

EXTRAORDINARY EXTENSION

As against these claims of the past, a believer in the present might quote the extraordinary extension of Edinburgh University since the war. During these fifteen years there have been established no less than sixteen new chairs. In the SIX Faculties—Arts, Science, Divinity, Law, Medicine and Music—there are now fifty-nine professors, one hundred and sixty readers and lecturers, and nearly a hundred assistants and demonstrators. In 1922-23 there were 4,243 undergraduates, and 814 degrees were conferred. There are a greater number of students from overseas in Edinburgh than in any other British University.

NAVY DAY CELEBRATIONS

H.M.S. Eagle Was Welcomed To The Station

AN IMPRESSIVE FLYING DISPLAY

The great event of Navy Day was the meeting between H.M.S. Eagle, the big air-craft carrier, that had just arrived on the station and three destroyers of the China Squadron, with representative guests on board from the Colony of Hong Kong, including H.E. the Governor and Lady Peel.

A series of flying and other exercises took place, a full account of which appear below.

In the afternoon the dockyard and a number of H.M. Ships were open to visitors, and a big programme of displays, serious and otherwise carried out. The events were admirably staged and very much appreciated, King Neptune and "the line" ceremonial being a great draw.

Programme of Flying

EXERCISES FROM H.M.S. EAGLE

Sharp at 8 a.m. all the guests embarked on H.M.S. Keppel and taken outside the harbour limits to near Junk Bay where His Excellency the Governor and his party were transferred to H.M.S. Eagle, the noted Air craft carrier.

Three destroyers viz. H.M.S. Keppel, H.M.S. Witch, and H.M.S. Wishart accompanied the Eagle, most of whom had passengers, the Navy showing as usual the best of hospitality. H.M.S. Eagle proceeded to the open sea near Waglan lighthouse.

After a general inspection round H.M.S. Eagle the machines were prepared for the exercises they were going to perform. One prefers not to go into details but there was every sign of the utmost efficiency.

Nine machines took off from the deck of H.M.S. Eagle and this was perhaps the most interesting spectacle of all. The ship was put straight into the wind, and a tell tale trail of smoke indicated that all was ready for starting, and the nine machines took off one by one.

So well were the machines tuned, and so powerful were their engines that many of them did not require the whole run of the deck to attain flying speed. In fact several machines only required half the deck to attain the necessary speed.

These machines were of the Hawker Osprey type with Rolls Royce Kestrel, the latest type of aircraft in the Fleet Air Arm. They are two-seater fighters with a top speed of 150 knots, and with an armament of one Vickers, one Lewis Gun and four 20-lbs bombs. The Vickers is a fixed Gun, controlled by the pilot, and firing through the airscrew by means of an interruptor gear.

H.M.S. Eagle towed a target behind her and the nine machines fired 100 rounds at this target. A very fine view was obtained from the Eagle, and the shooting was very good. The Gunnery expression for it being "mostly O.K."

The next part of the programme was No. 824 Squadron which had disembarked on the 27th, arrived from Kai Tak Aerodrome and carried out flight bombing from about 8,000 feet, each craft dropping 8 bombs. Here again the marksmanship was good.

After this there was a lot of low flying around and over the ship. Unfortunately it was considered too rough for the machines to land on the deck of H.M.S. Eagle and at first one was a little disappointed, but the pilots must be considered, and it certainly was rough. From the way the machines took off one felt that there would be no difficulty in landing on the decks with such efficient machines and pilots.

On the way home the spectators were given the treat of seeing a small gun firing at various targets with marked efficiency. So well cared for were the spectators that they were given small wads of cotton wool to place in their ears to avoid the nasty crack of the gun when firing.

After this the clever spectators found their way to the Ward Room where the inner man was warmed and cheered. Everyone was very grateful for their excellent hospitality to Commodore Frank Elliot O.B.E. R.N., Captain Lionel V. Wells D.S.O. R.N. (Captain of H.M.S. Eagle) and Wing Commander James M. Robb D.S.O. D.F.C. R.A.F.

Unfortunately there were only three ladies on Board H.M.S. Eagle and these were Lady Peel, Mrs. Elliot, and Mrs. Sedgwick.

On the way home the band of the Royal Marines played pleasant tunes, the various salutes being given as we passed the ships of H.M.S. Fleet, and the Eagle berthed alongside west wall wharf at about 12 o'clock midday. This ended a most interesting and enjoyable morning.

Among the guests present were the following:—

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel and staff, the Hon. Mr. D. W. Trautman, C.M.G., Mr. J. R. Wood, Sir William Hornell, the Hon. Mr. C. Gordon Mackie, Mr. R. E. Lindsell, the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, the Hon. Mr. S. W. T'so, Mr. W. A. Dowley, Mr. H. S. Rouse, Mr. A. L. Shields, Mr. E. G. Jamieson, C.B.E., the Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, Col. F. P. Neworthy, D.S.O., M.C., Col. S. Boyd, D.S.O., R.E., Lt. Col. T. G. Raikes, D.S.O., and Lt. Col. W. L. Hailes.

In The Dockyard

H.M.S. EAGLE THE GREAT DRAW

A scene, reminiscent of the Aldershot Tattoo, was enacted as the afternoon celebrations in the Naval Dockyard were brought to a conclusion. The files and drums of the South Wales Borderers and Lincolnshire had played "The Retreat" on the football ground inside the "Yard", and, in the falling light, huge arc-lamps were turned on. As the bands marched up and down, this lighting made a most impressive effect. This, however, was not all, for when the time came for visitors to leave, day light was so dim that H.M.S. Eagle turned on a searchlight to help visitors on their way. This, an unrehearsed part of the programme, was indeed a fitting finale to what had been a very impressive afternoon's show, and it will long remain in the minds of those who witnessed the spectacle.

The Naval Yard was open to visitors from 1.30 p.m. but long before that hour, crowds had gathered outside the gates in Queen's Road and Murray Road, all eager to get a glimpse of what goes on in the Dockyard, and many, for the first time, to board some of the wonderful modern war ships which they have seen so often in the distance out in the stream or alongside the Dockyard jetties.

For the convenience of visitors, two "money-changers" stands were erected outside the Prince of Wales Gate and here a brisk business was done.

No sooner had the gates been opened than a steady stream began to pour into the Dockyard and this kept on incessantly, until almost closing time. Most of the people, the early arrivals, made at once for H.M.S. Eagle which was lying alongside the West Wall, but the officer on duty on the bridge courteously informed them that the ship would not open to visitors until 2.30 p.m.

As there were many other things to be seen, the wait did not appear unduly long, and in the meantime, visitors saw diving operations, and also saw the slideshows.

Promptly at 2.30 p.m., the Yard seemed to echo and re-echo with three, "Hello, hello, hello" and the announcement was made, through the public address system, installed by the Hong Kong Telephone Co., that the "Crossing the Line" ceremony was about to start. It was also announced that there need be no rush to witness this for the ceremony would be repeated later in the afternoon, and those who wanted to "do" the other sights could carry out their programme without any fear of missing this time-honoured observance.

Father Neptune provided much amusement for the kiddies as he

THE NEURALIA ARRIVES

Busy Five Hours in Hong Kong

The Troopship Neuralia which had been delayed through bad weather arrived in Hong Kong on Saturday morning, bringing with her a Battalion of the Worcester Regiment from Malta en route for Shanghai. She also had on board drafts for the various military units in the Far East.

During the Neuralia's short stay of only five hours two football matches were played between the Worcester and the Lincolnshires, each regiment winning one match. Friendly hospitality was dispensed between the two regiments who keep up a traditional friendship.

At the conclusion of the games the two regiments returning to Holt's Wharf played their regimental marches, "The Lincolnshire Poacher" and "The Windsor". After this the Worcester's embarked again on the Troopship Neuralia, having during their stay of only five hours in Hong Kong put in a very busy time.

The Troops on board also included a small detachment of the Queen's Royal Regiment bound for Tientsin to join their unit.

was played up to the tank, specially erected near H.M.S. Tamar, by a band (mouth organs and drums), members of whom wore multi-coloured costumes. He wore a crown, terrific whiskers and long blue gown, and carried a trident. He took his place on his throne with "Lady Neptune" alongside him, also in blue, with long blonde hair. Their courtiers, also in costumes appropriate to "Davy Jones Locker", were grouped on one side. The "candidates" were "presented" in turn, and duly washed, shaved and bathed in the pool, a special flourish of mouth organs and drums greeting each initiate as he crawled out of the water.

Other side-shows included an aerial railway, Aunt Sally, and the ventriloquist, who was in much demand.

Of the ships that were thrown open for inspection, H.M.S. Eagle proved to be the most popular, some people paying more than one visit to this wonder-ship. The cruisers, Suffolk and Berwick, alongside North Wall, and the destroyers, also, were packed with eager sightseers, and in this connection a word of gratitude must be said for the way in which the sides were very courteously explained to the more complicated details to the layman.

The mimic battles carried out all gave an idea of the ordinary man what naval efficiency is really like. There was no "acting" about it all—the officers and crew concerned in these battles going about their work as though it were the "real thing." A very impressive incident was the rapid turn out of a destroyer's crew to repel aircraft, on the alarm being given by the officer of the watch.

On the football ground, two detachments from H.M.S. Berwick gave an idea of the mobility of the modern howitzer, when a large gathering saw one of these "big fellows" taken down and re-assembled in a few minutes.

While all this was going on, those responsible for the arrangements did not lose sight of the fact that "a lighter side" was essential for the afternoon's success, and thanks to the work put in by the men, the side shows carried on with the greatest vigour and cheerfulness. The Navy films were particularly popular; there was a particularly good shot of the Mediterranean Fleet returning to the Grand Harbour of Valetta, in Malta. Another scene at Malta showed review in harbour of the First Lord of the Admiralty, and most impressive was the picture of the Iron Duke in Portsmouth Harbour, passing the historic Victory, in her dry-dock.

The arrangements, left nothing to be desired. Even during the tea interval, visitors were entertained by an aerial display which evoked much admiration, and one feels that as the planes carried out their stunts, many a heart must have stopped beating! The Fleet Air Arm pilots were responsible for this show, and very excellent it was.

So successfully was the programme carried out that those who visited the Yard on Saturday must have left with the hope that on Navy Day, 1934, the Naval Authorities will again carry out the same programme. Perhaps by then, some new and still more wonderful inventions will have been completed, and be open for inspection, but whatever happens, it still remains the hope of all that we shall have a repetition of Saturday's events, for it is fact that when the Navy entertains, they go about it in a way peculiar to themselves—there is always an air of cheerfulness, and at the same time, the last word in efficiency.

Bold Lad Wins Champions At Macao: Lucky Drawer Gets $18,000

MANY SPILLS IN THE CANTON PLATE

(BY "MORNING DEW")

Yesterday's racing at Macao provided plenty of thrills to those who made the trip to the Portuguese Colony and both from the point of view of jockeys and punters, the day's sport was an unqualified success.

The main race of the day was The Champions which fell to Bold Lad, who won a very slow race from Blue Plane and Pure Music.

There was an unusually large number of spills in the race for ponies of the Canton Riding Academy. One of the ponies, Genny, broke his spine in a fall and had to be destroyed. Another, Abrek, broke his fetlock but had not been destroyed up to the time the Taisan sailed, though immediately after the race it was thought necessary to do so.

MRS. FROST WINS LADIES RACE

The ladies' race which brought the afternoon's sport to a close went to Mrs. Frost on Wembley Stag. She won by four lengths from Widnes ridden by Miss Joan Dowbiggin, while Miss Alabaster finished third on Swale.

There was a fairly full complement of passengers on the Taisan when she sailed from Hong Kong at 8.45 a.m. Many people, including two jockeys, missed the boat, but these made the trip on the Tai Hing later in the morning. The weather was cold and disagreeable when the ship left, but improved considerably during the day and it was quite warm at the Race Course.

Favourite Wins.
Of the six ponies which faced the starter in the opening event of the day, Pure Music, with Deitz up, was an odds-on favourite with So On next in demand. When the field was sent off Whitehall led with So On and Pure Music well up. Genghis Khan, Washaway and Happy Man, the others in the race, were out of it before the first half mile was over. Pure Music led into the straight with So On on the rails within half a length of him. There was not much of a tussle between the two as Pure Music won in effortless fashion. Whitehall kept up long enough to stall off Genghis Khan for third place.

Deitz Wins Again.
After steering in the favourite in the first race, Deitz riding an outsider in Ajax pulled off the second race by a short head from Adam with King's Parade third and Darian a bad fourth.

Mr. Frost riding Adam chose to take the lead, but Mr. Soares on King's Parade kept within a length of Adam while Mr. Deitz on the lightly weighted Ajax was not more than half a length behind. There was no change of position over the first half mile, except that Darian was by then many lengths behind.

Just before entering the home straight, King's Parade began to tire and gradually dropped out, but while Ajax crept up on Adam and the two (both very tired) fought all the way home for the lead, Ajax getting the better of the argument by a short head.

The Canton Plate.
The race for ponies of the Canton Riding Academy drew eight starters, but to call the event a race would be to stretch the meaning of the word.

When the field, which included four Australian ponies, was sent off, two ponies refused to run. Of the others, Abrek took a tremendous lead by registering 23 seconds over the first quarter of a mile, after which he was seen to stop abruptly and roll over on his side. Meanwhile the second pony, Genny (an Australian) stumbled, threw his jockey and in so doing broke his spine. China Bell who was over a hundred yards behind after three furlongs, complete the three quarters of a mile to win in the absurd time, for an Australian pony of 146.1 Tango was second and many lengths (about 50) behind came Legzin.

After the race Genny was destroyed at the spot where he fell, while Abrek managed to hobble back to the stable with a broken fetlock, but in all probability, he will have to be destroyed.

Esk Wins.
Mr. Yue Shun Wah rode like an expert on Esk when he led all the way home in the novices event. The Lofer with Mr. Poy up (40 lbs. of lead added) could not make any impression on the leader and was lucky to get third as Swale, put up a stiff fight and was only just ousted. City of Shanghai, running comfortably behind, Esk took second place.

The Champions.
Battling Horse was as fat as a barrel when he was saddled for the champions and it was obvious that in that condition he was no match for Bold Lad. He was unplaced. Blue Plane and Pure Music made the running but at the half mile the former dropped back slightly.

Three furlongs from home, Bold Lad and Battling Horse had gone up to join the leader, but turning into the straight Battling Horse had had enough, while Blue Plane came along on his second wind to put up a stout challenge to Bold Lad, going under by two lengths at the finish.

The first prize in the special cash sweep exceeded $18,000.

Volunteers Race.
Pat was much too good for the field in the Volunteers' race and won easily. He stayed with the leaders all the way and came through readily in the straight.

Mrs. Frost's Win.
Mrs. Frost riding Wembley Stag scored a popular win in the last race. The winner kept her pony slightly in front most of the way and drew away to win easily in the home straight. Widnes was not prominent until he made his effort in the run home, when Miss Dowbiggin brought him through the rest of the field like a knife. Swale came in third, after having just made a place in the novices event.

Miss Fearon on Powerful King looked like coming through the field at the bend, when the pony moved up visibly, but immediately on entering the straight, petered out again. Miss Betty Fair on Orlando was unfortunate at the start, but on the whole rode a good race.

HONG KONG, OCTOBER 30, 1933.

AMATEUR ACTING

With the autumn comes the amateur theatrical season in Hong Kong. The Philharmonic are busy rehearsing "The Pirates of Penzance," and their supporters will welcome a return to Gilbert and Sullivan. "The Pirates" is one of the best of the Savoy series, a perfect mine of popular numbers of which no one ever tires, but it is an exacting piece, both for chorus and principals. "The Philharmonic" has seen many changes since this opera was produced in 1926, with the late A. J. Brock, whose loss has never been replaced, and Mrs. Bowes Smith, in the leading parts, but no doubt adequate new talent has been discovered. The A.D.C. has made no announcement, but will doubtless continue their notable dramatic work, and it is to be hoped that the usual concert troupes will soon be in evidence. One that came into being last year, under the engaging title of "Cochran's Throw Out," will be looked for in the near future, and the undoubted skill of the Récitro players also merits wider publicity than it has received.

It would certainly be a pity if there was any lessening of theatrical enterprise in the Colony, despite the handicap of the loss of the Theatre Royal. In England the cinema, so far from desecrating the stage, seems to have stimulated amateur theatricals almost to the scale of a national movement. Apart from that, explanation it would be difficult to decide what is the reason for the tremendous growth in the British nation's interest, which has manifested itself so clearly during the last decade or so, in the Drama. It may be an unconscious reaction against the mechanistic tendency of our age—an urge to create something out of oneself instead of being a mere cog in the machinery of modern organisation; or it may be an expression of that adventurous spirit which, in more leisurely times, sent the Briton roaming over the earth's surface for the thrill of situations which were seldom contained within the frame of his ordinary life. Whatever the reason, the fact remains that, professional actors and actresses apart, there are at present about a hundred and fifty thousand amateur players actively engaged in stage work.

As the great number of public theatres testify, the stage has always held a great attraction for the British public and amateur performances have long been a favourite pastime. But it is more especially since the war that the amateur dramatic movement has received an impetus lifting it far beyond mere pleasant trifling. There are few of the larger organisations, institutions and business houses in Great Britain which have not got a dramatic club. In villages and country districts plays are studied and performed throughout the winter; dramatic circles are organised by most Women's Institutes, which are doing such excellent work by bringing diversion into the lives of women living far from amenities of town; and schools, universities, factories, mines, and communities of all descriptions have their regular meetings for the pursuit of dramatic activity.

Many of the dramatic clubs in Great Britain are organised in such a way that all members are pressed into work. They build their own stage, make their own costumes, print and distribute their own programmes and provide something a member can do for the common good. The selection of plays naturally varies greatly, ranging from one-act light entertainment to ambitious whole-night performances which would be a touchstone for the best among professional actors and actresses. But on the whole the dramatic clubs aim at a higher standard of culture and a deeper understanding of the problems which confront modern humanity, while in some instances a keen sense of the educational possibilities of dramatic art is evident.

Valuable aid for the amateur dramatic movement is rendered by the British Drama League, which was founded in 1919 by Mr. Geoffrey Whitworth with the object of assisting in the development of dramatic art and raising the level of amateur acting by expert criticism and instruction. Over 2,300 dramatic clubs are now affiliated to the League, which will send experts to supervise rehearsals, give advice on the selection of plays, arrange lectures and drama schools all over the country for the training of Producers and Players, form new dramatic clubs, criticise plays submitted for performance, etc. The League possesses a library of 17,000 volumes of plays and reference books on all matters connected with the stage, which individual members and affiliated societies may borrow.

The League further arranges competitions to give the clubs an opportunity of comparing their relative standards. The most interesting of them is the popular National Festival of Community Drama, which takes place every spring and is, so to say, the point of culmination of the winter's activity among the amateur clubs and societies. The teams entering for the tournament give their performances in the presence of adjudicators appointed by the League Council, who then select the best performances for the Final Festival or competition for the "Howard de Walden Cup" held in London during the month of May.

At the Festival this year no less than 466 teams of players from England and Wales had entered, of which five were selected for the Final in London. The "Howard de Walden Cup" was awarded to the Birkenhead Institute "Old Boys" for their rendering of Vernon Sullivan's "The Road of Poplars," a performance of which any professional company might well have been proud.

If there is little likelihood of the British nation, so to say, "over-night," finding itself a people of actors, the vigorous growth of its interest in the drama may well usher in an era of a new and sensitive art in the theatre and an application of drama to educational and instructive purposes which will stimulate the whole nation's interest and quicken its understanding of humanity's many problems.

An emphatic denial that he was engaged in negotiations with the Chinese and of the statement that Japan did not favour direct negotiations with China, but preferred to dispose of the Sino-Japanese problems piecemeal, was made by Mr. A. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, to-day.

He said that the only negotiations now in progress were between the military authorities, and included postal affairs at Shanghai, the establishment of customs stations on the Great Wall and the withdrawal of the Japanese inside Manchukuo.

He opined that, if Marshal Chiang Kai-shek's anti-Communist campaign proved unsuccessful, the Reds might penetrate as far as the Yangtze valley, with disastrous results.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

MAY BE RELEASED
NEXT WEEK

Berlin, Oct. 29. Noel Panter will be released next week provided he leaves Bavaria immediately, according to persons in touch with the Bavarian authorities.

Berlin, Oct. 27. The first German official reference to the arrest of Mr. Noel Panter, the London "Daily Telegraph" correspondent, in Munich, on a charge of high treason, is contained in a statement issued here today.

Panther is suspected of trying to illegally obtain military news. The statement alleges that he has, at some time, been in touch with a German in Munich, who is accused of espionage, and has been sending atrocity stories abroad.—Reuter.

Inquiries are being made with reference to crimes which might result in high treason proceedings. The British Consul-General in Munich, Mr. H. W. Galsford, after visiting Panter in jail, is convinced that he is furnished with all the possible comfort for which he asked.

The British Foreign Office will not move in the matter until the receipt of the official despatch from the Embassy, which is expected during the week-end.

It is understood that a passage of Panter's dispatch, describing the Nazis' review at Kelheim, said that thousands of "Unarmed" Storm Troops marched past with rifles and fixed bayonets at the slope. He also stated that a salute of 21 guns was fired in Hitler's honour.

These facts, which were not contested, were also reported by other correspondents.

The London "Evening Standard" has been banned in Germany for a month owing to one famous cartoonist, Low, depicting Chancellor Hitler standing near a bonfire outside the League of Nations building, saying, "It worked at the Reichstag, why not here?"—Reuter.

RATIONALISATION
SCHEMEFor German Coal and Steel Industry

Berlin, October 28. A huge scheme, aiming at the rationalisation of German steel and coal interests, is under consideration by four of the greatest concerns.

The companies affected are the Vereinigte Stahlwerke, whose share capital is £38,750,000, the Gelsenkirchener Bergwerks, with £12,500,000 capital, the Phoenix Mining Company with £8,500,000 capital, and the Völklingerhütte, with £810,000 capital.

The capital of the group would be reduced, considerably under the scheme, which would be carried by an exchange of shares. The total capital would be approximately £40,000,000.

A reduction of costs and the segregation of interlocking units is aimed at.

Twelve independent working subsidiaries would be created which would confine themselves to their own specialities.

The shareholders will meet at Essen on November 23, to confirm the scheme.—Reuter.

ARABS GO ON STRIKEAt Haifa And
Jerusalem

Haifa, October 28.

The police here were today compelled to fire on a mob of Arabs who were attempting to rush the main station on the occasion of the arrival from Jaffa of the prisoners arrested during yesterday's rioting. Several persons were wounded.

The timely arrival of police reinforcements prevented damage to the main station, which now presents a warlike appearance. Troops are stationed on the roofs.

The Arabs have blocked the roads with burnt motor-vehicles and the position is aggravated by a general Arab strike, affecting shops and taxis. The harbour work is unaffected. Meantime, a curfew has been declared.

Jaffa is quiet, but tension remains very high among the sullen crowds. It is feared that the disquieting news from Haifa will cause a recurrence of Friday's riots which broke out following the formation of a procession in defiance of the order issued by the High Commissioner of Palestine. Lt.-General Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope.

Troops are standing by the strategic positions and also at Nablath and Safed.

Armoured cars and troops are patrolling the streets of Nablath, where one rioter was killed yesterday, following a mob attack the railway station.—Reuter.

Firm Steps Taken in Jerusalem

Jerusalem, October 18. A general strike was declared here today. All Arab shops are closed and no buses are running.

The Government has taken firm action in arresting members of the Arab Executive.—Reuter.

Jews Fear Trouble

Jaffa, Earlier.

A number of important Arab executive leaders, among others, have been arrested here following an Arab demonstration.

The police at Haifa fired into the air to disperse a threatening crowd on receipt of the news from Jaffa. Jewish families, fearing trouble, are moving from outlying districts into the central Jewish quarters.—Reuter.

TWENTY-FOUR RIOTERS
KILLED

Jerusalem, October 29.

The High Commissioner assured the Arab deputation that there was no fear of the Jews assuming supremacy over them as he was ruling with equity. Latest estimates of the casualties show that two native policemen were killed and twenty-five injured, three British officers seriously hurt and fifteen slightly injured. Of the rioters twenty-five were killed and 180 injured.—Reuter.

It is noteworthy that during the funerals today, the crowd yelled, "Down with the Arab Executive," instead of "Down with the Government," as was the case yesterday.—Reuter.

MORE RIOTING IN
JERUSALEM

Jerusalem, October 29.

There was a recurrence of rioting this morning. The police were obliged to fire on rioters at Damascus Gate. There were some casualties.

In a fracas in the main street, Arabs compelled Jewish shops to close, wrecked one shop and forced English show-rooms to close before the police dispersed the crowd.

A mob, after mid-day prayers at the Mosque throwing stones endeavoured to break through the police cordon, and at Jaffa Gate the police were obliged to use batons and a few shots were fired.

All Arab buses and premises are continuing to strike indefinitely. The Old City is filled with excited Arabs endeavouring to obtain passes in order to demonstrate.

Other parts of Palestine are reported quiet.—Reuter.

The agreement with the Indian cotton merchants, which he should not publish until October 30, states that the Indian delegates have agreed that the industry requires a higher level of protection against the United Kingdom.

They will not make any fresh proposals in regard to duties applicable to British cotton and piece-goods imports when the time comes for the removal of the surcharges on all imports, imposed in October 1931.

The duty on British cotton-yarns may be five per cent. ad valorem with a specific duty of 14 annas per pound.

The duties on British artificial silk goods may be 30 per cent. ad valorem or 24 annas per square yard on a mixture of cotton and artificial silk fabrics.

months that he differed radically with General Chiang Kai Shek, Chairman of the Nanking Military Commission, and Mr. Wang Ching Wei, President of the Executive Yuan, on foreign policy.

While Chiang and Wang insist on closer relations with Japan, Soong demands more intimate co-operation with the League of Nations. It is believed here that the pro-Japanese faction is in the ascendancy, hence Mr. Soong's resignation.

Measra. Chiang and Wang according to press reports, hold the view that it is high time to come to an understanding with Japan without regard to Manchuria.

It is forecast in official circles here that either Mr. Soong will be persuaded to remain and sacrifice his policy or Mr. H. H. Kung, Governor of Central Bank of China, will be the next minister of finance.

MRS. RUSSELL DISTRIBUTES PRIZES

The curtain was rung down on the lawn bowls season in Hong-kong when players from every club in the Colony were engaged in the Aitkenhead competition at Happy Valley on Saturday. There were twelve rinks in all, Hong-kong and Kowloon both fielding 48 players, and the Island won by 36 shots.

Quite a large gathering of enthusiasts followed the progress of the games and at the conclusion, Mrs. James Russell, wife of the President of the Lawn Bowls Association gave away the prizes won during the season.

VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR
REVIEWED

Before the distribution of prizes, Mr. Russell reviewing the year's games said that everyone must agree that the Association had had a very successful season. The weather had been kind to them and had enabled them to finish the league engagements quite early. He congratulated the winners of the first and second leagues as well as the Craigengower C. C. for carrying away the Spey Royal Cup.

With regard to the interport games, Mr. Russell thought the Colony had seen some remarkable games and that both the local side and the visitors had displayed keen sportsmanship and, he added, Hongkong were perhaps a bit lucky in retaining the Prentice Cup. The interport games, he said, tended to raise the standard of lawn bowls in Hongkong.

Mr. Russell said that they were all indebted to the generosity of Mr. R. C. Aitkenhead who was the originator of the tournament that had had during the afternoon. It was a very inspiring idea, and although the tournament started with only four rinks from each side, today they were able to field twelve rinks. Hongkong had only previously won on one single occasion, in 1931 and Kowloon had won all the games since 1928 when the competition started. The President thanked the Police, Civil Service and Craigengower Club for placing their grounds at the disposal of the Association.

After the prize distribution, Mrs. Russell was presented with a bouquet by Miss Margaret Macfarlane.

The Royal Navy secured a double against the Gunners at Happy Valley.

H.K. Club beat the Police by the margin of one goal in a very keen tussle on the Club ground.

Kowloon went down to the Athletic in a game that varied, the Athletic winning in the closing minutes.

The Borderers put on eight without reply from the Recreio at King's Park.

South China Reserves defeated Kowloon on the Railway ground by three clear goals.

The Borderers Division III team went down to South China, losing their first points of the season.

The matches in the Hong Kong League resulted as under:

H.K. CLUB v. H.K. POLICE.

The Police had hard luck in not sharing the points when they met the Club on their own ground. They lost by a goal in a keen struggle, the result being three goals to two. Each side scored from a penalty kick.

Bickford started a raid in the Police goal and from his centre Fowler shot the ball into the net to open the score.

Play was very fast and even, the Police although a goal down at the interval had quite held their own.

The Police opened the second half with a raid on the Club goal and were awarded a penalty kick. Hutchinson beat Lawson from the spot to make the score one all.

The Club then pressed and in the tussle in the area a defender fouled and the Club took the lead again through Strange who converted from the penalty spot.

The Police again got on level terms, Willerton going in to beat Lawson from close range. A tussle for the lead ended in favour of the Club, Fowler beating McHardy with a left-footed drive from close range.

The Police rallied in the closing minutes to level up, but the Club defence held out until the final whistle sounded.

H.K. Club.—Lawson; Hynes, S. Strange; Robertson, Skinner, A. Duncan; Fowler, Dornay, Howe, E. Strange, Bickford.

H.K. Police.—McHardy; Black-borne, C. Pike; Perkins, Channings, Sheppard; Gough, Hutchinson, Willerton, Green, Brittain.

KOWLOON v. ATHLETIC.

A very exciting game took place on the Railway ground between Kowloon and the Athletic, the latter winning a well fought game by the odd goal in seven. There was a very good attendance.

Kowloon opened with a strong attack and during a scramble in the area, Mok Sui, Hong fouled Lewis. Bliss took the penalty kick and gave Kowloon the lead with a well placed shot.

The Athletic, with this reverse, put on pressure and soon had Cord defending his charge. The goalie made a mistake when he misjudged the speed of Tang Kwong who beat him for possession and shot into the net to make the score one all.

Soon after the Athletic took the lead through Mak Sui Hon who drew Cord out of goal and then shot into the net.

Before the interval the Athletic scored again Au Ping Ming going in to beat Cord from close range.

Crossing over a goal down, Kowloon opened the second half with a strong attack on the Athletic goal and Elliott headed into the net giving Li Kwok Ki no chance.

This success Kowloon forced the pace and levelled up through Elliott who shot into the net with a fast cross shot.

For a time play settled in mid-field, but a breakaway by the Athletic gave Ho Ka Kung an opening and he went in to beat Cord from close range and win the game for the visitors by four goals to three.

Kowloon.—Cord; Hill, Willis; Whitfield, Timberlake, Ellis; White, Webb, Elliott, Lewis, Blake.

Athletic.—Li Kwok Ki; Mok Sui Hong, Lo Cheung; To Hau Hung; Lai Kwok Chui, Ip Pang Fai; Tang Kwong Sum, Au Kin Fung; Ho Ka Kung, Au Ping Ming, Pam Kim Hing.

RECREIO v. S.W. BORDERERS.

Playing at King's Park, the Recreio put up a poor show against the Borderers going down by eight clear goals. The Recreio attack failed to do anything against the Borderers' middle line ably led by Podmore.

The Borderers opened out the game from the start and Marques was easily beaten by a shot from Hazlewood, but the ball hit the post and rebounded to play. The Borderers opened the score through Jones who shot into the corner of the net. The military team continued to press and during a scramble in the goalmouth, Guterres turned the ball into his own net in trying to clear a shot from Harris.

A rush by the Recreio forwards found Sousa well placed but his shot was saved by Smith.

Hazlewood increased the Borderers' lead when he shot through a crowd of players to give Marques no chance. Another breakaway found Recreio close in and Gomes shot into the net after the whistle had blown for offside against him.

Jones got through to score the Borderers' fourth goal.

Jones again got through and beat Marques with a fast shot from close range. Wallace took a pot shot from forty yards and the ball entered the net to put the Borderers six up.

Recreio.—Marques; Silva-Netto, Guterres; McGrann, Figueroa, Maher; Castilho, Gonsalves, Sousa, Gomes, Santos.

S.W. Borderers.—Smith; Harris, Morrison; Wallace, Podmore, Underwood; Harris, Nelson, Hazlewood; Jones, Duncan.

R. NAVY v. R.A.

At Happy Valley, The Navy secured full points from the R.A. by two goals to one. The Navy were erratic in shooting and missed several chances from close range.

Early in the game Woodman was penalised for carrying and Seal taking the spot kick shot into the roof of the net, throwing away a good chance of giving the Gunners the lead. A tap to another player would have probably opened the score but probably the Gunners winger forgot himself and shot straight into the net, the goal being not allowed.

The Navy took the lead through Hinder after Langmead had shot hard against the crossbar, the outside right running up to take the rebound and shoot into the net.

The Gunners were not long in arrears for Snook running in from a pass by Leach beat Woodman for possession and shot the ball into the net. Seal cut in from the left and beat the ball close in, Woodman bringing in a smart save.

Resuming the Navy pressed, but shooting was wild. Langmead and Hinder missed from close range. The Gunners made a couple of raids on the Navy goal, but failed close in, Woodman clearing in great style. Seal went down the wing, but shot over the bar. The Navy took the lead after forcing a corner and before the Gunners could get the ball away, Barnett shot into the net. Another raid by the Navy was stopped by Combey who dived full length to turn round the post a shot from Barnett. With the Gunners struggling hard to level up, the final whistle sounded.

Royal Navy.—Woodman; James West; Purkins, Thomas, McQuire; Fairless, Smith, Langmead, Barnett and Hinder.

R.A.—Combey; Allan, Wroe; Rodgers, Fardoe, Harris, Snook, Smith, Leach, Greenshields, and Seal.

Playing on the Club ground, the Borderers defeated the Club by four goals to two.

The Club opened out the play from the kick off and Forrow sent across from the right for Duncan to shoot into the net.

Morris soon levelled up for the Borderers and before the interval Forrow put them in front.

Morris increased the Borderers' lead early in the second half. The Club fought back gamely and scored through Duncan.

TENNIS MATCH POSTPONED

Chinese Ace Feeling III

The exhibition tennis match between Mr. Hui Sun Kei, who lately beat Khoo Hye Hoo in the Nanking championships, and Tsui Wai Fui, our leading Chinese player, which was to have taken place on the C.R.C. courts yesterday was postponed.

No notice of their postponement was given and a large crowd of people had gathered at the C.R.C. in anticipation of some fine tennis. The visitor did not arrive and half an hour after the advertised time a mild curiosity was aroused.

Some while later an envoy was sent to look for the honoured guest. After another wait he returned without Mr. Hui.

It appeared that the Nanking champion was not feeling well after his sea-trip and could not turn out. There is some possibility that the exhibition may be held to-day.

Before the final whistle sounded, Marshfield scored for the Borderers.

KOWLOON v. SOUTH CHINA

Playing on the Railway ground, South China defeated Kowloon by three clear goals. South China opened the score from a free kick.

Yeung Kwok Wu sending in a hard shot which Cook fielded well, but let the ball drop and it went into the net to put South China one up.

Kowloon fought back gamely but South China defence held out.

Crossing over a goal to the good, South China soon increased their lead through Lai Sui Wong, who snapped up a pass from Ip Lai Yu and left Cook standing.

Before the final whistle sounded, Lai went through and again beat Cook.

R. NAVY v. R.A.

The match on the Athletic ground between the Navy and R.A. was very keenly contested, the Navy winning by the only goal scored.

After a few minutes' even play, the Navy broke through, but Chappell missed from close range by kicking over the ball. The Navy forced a corner, Bates shooting wide.

Half-time, no score.

Early in the second half the Gunners had a chance to take the lead. A free kick thirty yards out was shot in, Liddington in the Navy goal turning the ball behind. The flagkick was cleared and Bates sent across from the left, Elsworth scoring the only goal of the match.

DIVISION III.

LINCOLNS v. UNIVERSITY.

The Lincolns put on eight goals against the University on the Athletic ground at Happy Valley, while the University failed to register a goal. The match started late owing to the University team being late. They then played throughout the match with ten men.

In the first half, Setters scored two, Clarke two and Tate one.

Crossing over with a five goals lead, the Lincolns added to their score through Matthews (2) and Tate.

SOUTH CHINA v. BORDERERS.

The Borderers lost their 100 per cent record playing on the St. Joseph's ground and going down to the South China team by three goals to one. Taking the lead early in the game through Parsons, the Borderers seemed to have the game well in hand. Tong Ming Ping levelled the score and then a change came over the game. The Borderers were forced to defend strongly, but before the interval To Wai Hung gave South China the lead.

The South China added to their score during the second half and the Borderers trying hard to register were well held until the final whistle sounded.

RADIO v. R.A.M.C.

This game was played on the Navy ground and ended in a draw of one goal all. The Medicals had more of the game during the second half and levelled up through King.

R.A.S.C. v. RECREIO.

The R.A.S.C. failed badly before the Recreio on the Military ground at Happy Valley and went down by three clear goals. The Recreio scored their goals during the first half and were content in holding off the R.A.S.C. during the second half.

Castilho opened the score and soon netted the second goal. Campus also netted for Recreio.

SUNDAY'S MATCH

Division I.

S. CHINA v. ST. JOSEPH'S

South China showed surprisingly poor form in their match with St. Joseph's yesterday at Caroline Hill, although they emerged victors by the only two goals scored.

The Saints had little difficulty in holding the China attack during the first half and it was only after the interval that South China showed anything like their usual form.

Marques, Leonard and Gosano proved themselves to be the stumbling block to South China's attack, the two backs breaking up the attack time after time, whilst Marques in goal made several excellent saves and cleared in fine style.

Costa, as the Saint's pivot worked perseveringly and generally managed to beat Pau Ka Ping to the ball, but his play lacked the constructiveness essential in setting his forward line in motion.

On the other hand Wong, who had been shifted to the pivot position of S. China, was easily the most outstanding player on the field and, though he made several bad mistakes through hesitating with the ball, he gave his forwards numerous opportunities to break through the Saints defence.

The old falling of the China forwards asserted itself, however, namely the inside men trying to get in close to goal before shooting. Several good opportunities were lost through the delay in making the shot.

St. Josephs at one period dominated the game and they had very hard luck in failing to score when Ward sent in a shot from close in, which, however, Wong got his hands to and cleared strongly.

Up to the end of the first half play was very even and it must have come as a disappointment to South China's supporters when the whistle blew with no score registered.

At the change over S. China took the offensive, but St. Josephs were not to be denied their share of the play and soon took the ball up to the China goal where they gave Wong a very anxious time for a few moments.

St. Josephs then made their first mistake; they allowed the China forward line to break away with no more opposition than the two backs to stop them. Yeung found himself in possession of the ball in an absolutely unmarked position and ran down to send across a centre that Pau snapped up, but his shot was blocked by Leonard and by that time the rest of the Saints defenders had arrived and packed the goal-mouth in an effort to stop the China forwards from scoring. Pau, however, managed to obtain the ball from Leonard, and, shooting round him, sent in a shot that found Marques unsighted, thus giving China their first goal.

The Saints did not lose heart, however, but immediately sent the ball back to Gosano on the right, who sent across a good centre that was not taken advantage, Ward failing to get to the ball quick enough. Lau Mau cleared in excellent style, sending the ball down to Ng Po Kiu, who passed to his inside man. Marques, who was marking him, failed to stop the ball thus letting the China forwards through again. Yeung, on the right ran down the wing with the ball, beating Gosano easily, and sending across a centre that Pau in the centre had no difficulty in snapping up, and which he sent in, the ball being reached by Marques but touching the under side of the cross bar and then rebounding into the net.

After their second goal, however, the China forwards seemed to have lost their sting, although Pau made another good attempt at obtaining the hat trick some few minutes later. St. Josephs managed to hold them, however, until the end of the game, although South China had numerous opportunities to increase the score.

THE INTERPORT TRIAL

T.A. and T.E. in Form

WHO WILL BE HONG KONG BOWLERS

The Third Interport Trial has not shown the selectors anything beyond the facts that T. A. Pearce is definitely a class batsman, which they already knew, and that A. R. Minu is necessary to the Interport side as the best left hand opening bowler we have. The Trial has, however, probably made the choosing of a fast bowler more difficult for the selectors. On Saturday's form Goodwin appeared to be giving more trouble to the batsmen than Pereira, and while he took 1 wicket for 17 runs Pereira gave away 31 without securing any victims.

On the other hand Goodwin's wicket was the result of a brilliant slip catch by Owen-Hughes, low down, which nine fieldsmen out of ten would not have got, while Pereira had the misfortune to have three catches missed off his bowling. Two of these faults were committed by Owen-Hughes, of all people, and they were catches which to a fieldsmen of his calibre were not difficult, especially compared with the one he did take.

The best batting of the day was by T. A. Pearce, but from a spectacular point Minu's knock was more enjoyable. From the moment he came out it was obvious he intended to lay on the wood and find the road if possible. He was beaten in that by Frank Goodwin, however, who, with a mighty hit, sent the ball over the stand into Des Voeux Road. Goodwin did not last very long, being caught by Walker, after mistiming one of Gittins' slow balls, but Minu continued to slog merrily. Some of his shots did not go where they were intended but one lovely straight drive off Redmond hit the top of the Murray Road screen with a resounding thud. He was 25 not out when the innings was declared.

Pearce's innings was a different variety. He took some pains to dig himself in, but once set he waited for the right ball and when it came he opened his shoulders to it. He did not lift the ball and thus gave no chance, but sent it streaking along the carpet. He retired after collecting a scientific and orthodox 30.

Teddy Fincher, who opened the innings with Duckitt for Hayward's XI, also batted well for his 26, but Captain Williams, after a patient 12 again put his foot in front of the wicket and was so obviously out that he walked away without waiting for the umpire's decision.

When Pearce's XI went in the batting was painfully slow. Lieut.

Walker was soon out but Rodrigues plodded on. His partnership with Redmond was the most dreary of the match, and when Garthwaite went in things were not much better. Rodrigues finally retired for 22, which he was over forty minutes in making.

With the arrival of Victor Gittins and "Tam" Pearce the game brightened up considerably. Gittins took no pains to play himself in and did not seem to value his wicket, and consequently, his batting was free, while the second ball Pearce received was cracked to the boundary with a lovely drive past mid-off, one of the best strokes of the match. Pearce continued in this strain and hit some more fine boundaries but a number of balls clearly beat him. This was as much due to the falling light as anything, but with the passage of

LEICESTER TAKE FULL POINTS FROM EVERTON

Thrills galore were provided for the thousands of spectators who turned out to watch the first division match between Aston Villa and the Arsenal. The teams were of practically equal strength, and so even was the run of play that the result was in doubt right up till the time the final whistle was sounded. The Arsenal won by the odd goal in five, but they had to fight every minute of the game for their victory, which, under the circumstances was a well-deserved one.

OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

O. E. C. Marton Wins

A. T. BRALEY TAKES VISITOR'S CUP

O. E. C. Marton, one of the most popular all-round sportsmen in the Colony, won the open golf championship at Fanling yesterday, when he returned a card of 154 (79 and 75). F. D. Hunter was second, his score being 158 for the two rounds. The Visitors' Cup was won by A. T. Braley (Kowloon Golf Club) who went round in 81 in the morning but fell off considerably in the afternoon when he did it in 88. Last year's winner, D. C. Wilson, made a bold bid to repeat his past success but he went round in 87 in the morning, and his card showed a total of 173 for the two rounds.

As is well-known, these championships are not confined to members of the Fanling Club, but are open to all golfers in the Colony. At yesterday's matches, members of the Kowloon, Shatin (Japanese) and Country Clubs, as well as a few representatives of the Junior Section, Royal Hong Kong Golf Club, took part, and the keenness in which all the matches were played off spoke well for the future of the competition.

MARTON'S GAME

Seen after the competitions, one of those who took part told the writer that Marton fully deserved to the title as he played excellent all-round golf right through. His iron shots were described as brilliant, and his putting steady, and last, but by no means the least, his insuperable tee shots contributed in a large measure to his success. Hunter was described as a worthy runner-up who displayed steady form right through the two rounds. So far as the Visitors' Cup was concerned, A. T. Braley had a good round in the morning but he fell off in the afternoon when he did it in 88.

The following are the best ten scores returned:—
O. E. C. Marton 79 and 75
F. D. Hunter 77 and 81
R. Young 81 and 80
L. R. Andrews 82 and 79
A. E. Lissaman 81 and 81
K. S. Robertson 80 and 83
J. B. Ross 86 and 81
J. M. Walker 82 and 88
A. T. Braley 81 and 88
D. C. Wilson 87 and 83

The morning rounds were played off on the old course which was described as "playing very nicely" by one of the visitors, who added that the new course was not what one might have expected, the greens being rough and patchy.

HOCKEY

D.G.S. Lose To "Y" Ladies

The Diocesan Girls' School hockey team lost to the "Y" ladies by two goals to one in a friendly match on their own ground. Despite the defeat, the schoolgirls put up a fine performance, for it was not until the last minute of the game that the deciding goal was scored.

The "Y" ladies, led by a goal, scored by Miss M. Griffiths in the first half. In the second, Miss M. Smith equalised for the schoolgirls, but Miss O. Dalziel regained the lead for the "Y" Ladies just before full time.

"Y" Ladies:—Miss J. Weller; Miss A. Fowler; Mrs. Portallion; Miss M. Gardner; Mrs. Rodgers; Miss B. Blumenthal; Miss O. Dalziel; Miss R. Blackmore; Miss Smith; Miss M. Griffiths and Miss O. Brown.

GERMAN CLUB v. SIGNALS.

The German Club fielding only ten men beat a weak Royal Corps of Signals eleven by six goals to one in a friendly game on the Marina ground.

Pract, the German International, scored all six goals for his side, while Short netted the only goal for the military side.

German Club: Amman, May, Heilmeyer; Foraita, Gerloff, Doberneckers Veit, Welsing, Pract and Mueller.

Signals: Cross; Neale, Larkin; Scott, Austen, Dilly; McLaughlin Smith, Henshaw, Short and Shove.

British community naturally take a special pride in their country's own contribution to the naval protection of the Yangtze's ports and traffic. Therefore Admiral Chilton, who comes with a fine reputation, is assured of a hearty welcome with good wishes for a successful and so far as conditions permit, pleasant tenure of command.—N.O.D.N. PREPARING FOR THE "LEGER" Full Particulars Of Saturday's Training Gallops

(By "MORNING DEW.")

Below will be found the training times clocked on Saturday. Warrington is still doing very slow work in preparation for the St. Leger, where he will probably start favourite.

Night Star, the favourite in the Australian class moved very well indeed, while, I need hardly say Trentbridge is fit and ready for next Saturday's big race.

Burgomaster went over a slow mile and a half taking 3 minutes 51 seconds for the journey, doing a fast last quarter only (31.2). Brechin galloped very well and is not so inclined to bore out nowadays. Golden Dragon and Jingle went out together and did slow three quarters of a mile. The former was looking very well.

Portia and Rosy Morn both went well and if they can stay the distance should be able to give Night Star a race.

Partnership, one of the biggest dangers in the Sub's St. Leger went over six furlongs and displayed convincing form.

THE VEHICULAR FERRY

Word Of Praise For A Well Managed Service

(By Our Special Correspondent)

I was at a loose end yesterday afternoon, and for want of something better to do, I decided to go over to Kowloon and take a ride round the New Territories. I had not been over for some time, and as the bus had been behaving itself for the past week or so, that helped me to make up my mind, for if I did not strike while the iron was hot, I was afraid that when I eventually made up my mind to go, the old tin can would refuse to take the hills—she is such a temperamental party.

Anyway, I took the vehicular ferry across and although it was rather late in the afternoon when I made the trip, the demand for space in the ferry was just as great as ever. Arriving at the wharf just after three o'clock, I had to wait my turn at the end of a queue before driving on to the launch, and by the time I got in, I found that there was no room left, not even for an Austin Seven. Three Ford lorries took up quite a lot of space and then there were three or four other cars besides an Austin and a two-seater.

As we were cutting our way through the harbour, I say cutting because that ferry launch can certainly travel, I let my memory drift back to those days when the only means of taking the car across the harbour was by the lighter. Those who have had a taste of the long and tedious trip necessitated by this means of transport need no reminder of what it was like, while those who are too new to the Colony to have seen it, had better remain in blissful ignorance, for it was rather an antiquated way of bringing one's car across even a small stretch of water. Let me, however, make it quite clear here that this is by no means meant as a slight on the Godown Company who operated the service. In fact all motorists have a lot to thank them for, and if they could only provide lighters, the consolation they have is that they gave the best possible services under none too easy circumstances.

To return to the subject of the vehicular ferry, I paid ninety cents for my bus and as there were five of us, I had to pay another twenty-five cents for our tickets. This was to my mind, more than fair, for all we had to do was remain seated in the car while it was being taken across. One humourist remarked that even for ten cents on the Star Ferry, one could not get the well-sprung and nicely upholstered seats that we enjoyed!

As soon as the ferry berthed on the other side, the Chinese inspector signalled the cars to go on, and here I want to give a word of praise and appreciation. There have been many remarks, not all of them polite ones, about the ship-shod way in which traffic in launches had been handled and a demand that they must have experienced European inspectors preferably an ex-policeman before they could even hope to get a satisfactory, let alone efficient, service. From what I saw yesterday, this is all nonsense; there was nothing wrong that I could see, with the way the Chinese inspector handled the big demand for space. In fact he did his job with the thoroughness of a trained man, and if all employees in the Company were like this particular one, I feel sure complaints will very soon be a thing of the past, and that we shall soon have one of the best regulated vehicular ferries in China, if not in the Far East.

CATHOLIC SCHOOLS SPORTS

Forty Seven Schools Compete on Caroline Hill Ground

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. A. R. Wellington distributed the prizes won at the Chinese Catholic Young Men's Society sports, a big gathering of about 5,000 students being present at Caroline Hill. Those present were His Lordship Bishop Vitoria, Rev. Fr. Soares, the Rev. Sisters of the Convents, the Rev. Brothers of St. Joseph's College, the headmasters and headmistresses of various schools and about 1,000 other guests (parents of the students).

All the 47 events were keenly competed in the most sportsmanlike spirit. The St. Margaret girls won the girls' schools championship and the Kung Kan school won the boys' while the St. Joseph boys won all the first prizes in the events opened to the English boys' schools.

The sports were a distinct success in spite of the cloudy weather and all the races were run at schedule time.

THE CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS—Before the distribution of prizes the chairman of C.C.Y.M.S. delivered his address as follows:

Ladies and gentlemen, On behalf of our society, I beg to thank you all for your presence at this function, especially Bishop Vitoria and the Hon. Dr. and Mrs. Wellington whose time is very full and yet they grace us with their presence this afternoon.

The aim and object of our sports is firstly to promote the physical culture of the students, especially those students of the Chinese schools who are not in the habit of taking part in sports, secondly to promote closer friendship and better feeling among the schools, thirdly to instil discipline into the minds of the students and lastly to make them possess a sound mind and a sound body.

Dr. and Mrs. Wellington, ladies and gentlemen, I hope your presence will give the students encouragement to look forward to progress and improvement not only in sports alone but in their studies as well. I trust you will all agree with me when I say that recreation and sport of various kinds are necessary not only for boys, but also for every man and woman, for they all tend to cultivate in their votaries qualities of mind and body such as strength, agility and endurance. The proverb, all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, bears out the truth of statement.

However I hope and trust that the intellectual and the moral training of the students in various schools are never superseded by that of sports. In other words their floral and their intellectual training are never lost sight of.

SPORTS NEW TO CHINA—I laid special stress on the word sports because most of the Chinese students are inactive and do not pay much attention to physical development. This habit came to them by inheritance, and it is only in recent years and in the principal towns of China that the students and the grown-ups of both sexes begin to realize the importance of sports. Some decades of years ago physical exercises were held in detestation or even set at defiance by the literary class in China.

As athletic sports are still in its infancy, awards of prizes as a means of encouragement are necessary, and I take this oppor-

RUGBY FOOTBALL

Army Defeat The Club

(BY FORWARD)

The Hongkong Football Club first XV suffered defeat at the hands of the Army in the first friendly encounter between these two teams this year. The Army scored two tries (6 points) to the Club's solitary try (3 points).

The tight scrums were evenly contested but in the loose the Army pack was superior. The first try came as a result of a forward rush Walter's scoring for the Army. There was no further scoring until the interval. Early in the second half Ferguson scored for the Club after a good combined movement and shortly afterwards an Army three-quarter intercepted in the Club half and passed to Bromby who touched down.

The Club had a chance to even the score when they were awarded a penalty in the Army 25, but the kick narrowly missed as did a good attempt by Hutchison to drop a goal shortly afterwards.

The Club side was W.H.B. Riggs, J. J. Ferguson, J. Hutchison, R. H. Griffiths, G. P. Lammer, A. F. Jenkins, J.A.R. Selby (Capt), I. H. Bradford, D. McLellan, R. Stillard, G. C. Moutrie, A. F. Walkden, D. C. Cumming, G. A. Stewart, R. A. Munro, Major H.M. J. McIntyre refereed the game which was played at Sookunpoo.

TWO GAMES ON SATURDAY—The usual "A" fixture for Wednesday has been cancelled this week but instead there will be two games on Saturday on the Club Ground. The first game commences at 3 p.m. and is between the Club "A" and Navy "A". At 4.15 p.m. the club first XV will play the South Wales Borderers. In view of these two fixtures it is hoped there will be a large turn out of members for the regular practices on Monday and Wednesday.

A FLOATING U.S. NAVY WANTED

Pacific Coast Bases
Not to be Enlarged

San Francisco, Oct. 29.

The principal object of the new United States naval programme is to get the navy off and not to build new naval bases, the Secretary of Navy, Mr. Claude Swanson, said today.

The Secretary of Navy has inspected the bases in the Canal Zone, Hawaii and Puget Sound and arrived here today to inspect the Mare Island yards.

He was asked if the San Francisco bay area was to become a great base, replied that it was not to be enlarged and that, as far as he could see, there was no immediate need of enlarging it.

Mr. Swanson implied that the public construction programme of the Administration was not originally intended for navy purposes but that a part of the appropriation was given to the Department as a means of increasing employment. Not much more money from that source could be expected.

The Secretary of Navy intimated that the existing yards on the Pacific coast are ample for repairing naval vessels and even for building certain types of vessels.

There is not the slightest hope that any of the Pacific coast bases will be greatly enlarged in the near future, he said, adding that he is directing his attention to making the navy efficient and building it up to the strength permitted under the treaties—United Press.
